Summary

I am Professor of Economics at the University of Vigo and Director of Economics for Energy, a private non-profit research center. My teaching and research interests lay on the borderlines of Public, Energy and Environmental Economics. I have published 20 academic papers in English, most of them in high-impact academic journals. I have also published and edited several books and book chapters, and my research has been repeatedly disseminated in academic workshops and seminars in Spain and elsewhere. I have assiduously organized scientific events, also as a means to disseminate knowledge to interested parties in society. I have been project leader of around 25 research projects since 2000, mostly funded by public institutions and private firms. I have supervised 4 doctoral theses and 6 postdocs, and have been quite active in academic reviewing of papers and peers too. I have usually received good teaching evaluations by students and currently coordinate a master's degree on environmental management at my university.
